

Randomstring

Random testing!

My random tester uses the inputChar and inputString functions to create random input. My method for inputChar was to just create a string of the desired chars, and then randomly generate the index for the char to be returned. I used the same method, but used a for loop to generate a string of length 6 with the same method. In this was it takes approximately 20,000 iterations to print the error message.